The arts play a vital role in enhancing our urban environment. The 46 for XLVI murals beautify our neighborhoods, and are an innovative and creative way to augment the extensive infrastructure work underway across the City.

Mayor Greg Ballard

46 for XLVI was a public art program of the Arts Council of Indianapolis created in partnership with the City of Indianapolis. Honoring and celebrating Super Bowl XLVI, which was held in Indianapolis in February 2012, 46 for XLVI served as the kick-off for a new citywide murals initiative for Indianapolis.

46 for XLVI received funding from both public and private sources, and was completed in just 18 months. Through a national call for artists, the Arts Council's Public Art Selection Committee chose 34 artists and artist teams from Indianapolis and all over the country. You can find 46 for XLVI murals throughout Marion County. The program received national attention for its breadth and scope, and is the recipient of a 2012 NUVO Cultural Vision Award.
